

The Weather

Fair today and tomorrow; little change in temperature.
(For full weather reports see Page 5.)

Richmond Times-Dispatch

Complete Markets

Full Associated Press Report

72D YEAR

VOLUME 72
No. 218,875

Entered January 27, 1905, at the Post-Office at Richmond, Va., as Second-Class Matter.

RICHMOND, VA., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1922. —TWELVE PAGES.

PRICE, THREE CENTS.

MUDANA MEETING TO DISCUSS PEACE PROPOSALS TODAY

Kemalist Terms Already Are Declared Unacceptable by British.

NATIONALISTS SEEK PRELIMINARY PACT

Want Formal Guaranty of Evacuation of Thrace Before Parleys.

THINK IRREGULARS CROSS BORDER

American Relief Workers Tell of Unpleasant Situation.

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 2.—The Mudana conference, which will be held tomorrow, is being discussed by the British and French envoys. The British representative, Sir George Buchanan, has already declared the terms proposed by the Kemalists to be unacceptable. The French representative, M. Franklin-Bouillon, has also expressed his doubts. The conference is expected to be held in the city of Mudana, which is a strategic point on the border between Turkey and Greece. The British and French are concerned about the possibility of irregular forces crossing the border and causing trouble. They want a formal guaranty of evacuation of Thrace before any parleys take place.

To Make New Neutral Zone.

Two of the most important questions to be discussed at the conference will be the demarcation of a new neutral zone on the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles and at Izmit, and the evacuation of Thrace.

The allies hold that Kemal's demands as outlined by M. Franklin-Bouillon are of such a nature that they would leave the British and French in a position to reject the allied notes. Kemal insists on the settlement of all military questions before replying to the allied proposals. He and four of the ministers at Smyrna accepted the allied note in principle, but the attitude of the Ankara assembly is not known.

Delegates Off for Conference.

Hamid Bey, representing the Ankara government, accompanied by M. Franklin-Bouillon, the French envoy, will leave tomorrow for Mudana on the cruiser Metz. General Mombelli, who will represent Italy at the conference, will proceed on the Italian liner. General Sharpe, representing the British, and General Harrington, on the French liner, will also be present.

The Mudana conference will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The British and French have ordered the cessation of all marine traffic in the neighborhood of Mudana and have sent their representatives to the conference. Daily communiqués will be issued on the results of the conference and transmitted by wireless to Constantinople.

Change Causes Comment.

General Harrington, representing the British, has been replaced by M. Franklin-Bouillon. This change has caused much comment, as it is a vast difference in their ranks. General Harrington has been in command of the British forces while M. Jones is only a staff officer.

Less Than Other Executives.

Mr. Jones said the city of Richmond compared with any city in the world. He said the city had a salary much less than that paid to executive officers in many of the cities in Virginia. The question of raising the salary was defeated by a vote of 12 to 6. Mr. Jones was changing his vote to "no" for parliamentary reasons, and the original plan fixing the salary at $10,000 was adopted.

Mr. Hirschberg "warned" Council that the people were now clamoring for a change in the charter.

The salary of the Controller was increased to $4,500, and that of the justice of the peace to $1,500. The resolution permitting the traction company to continue its 6-cent fare policy was adopted. An appropriation of $1,000 for a survey of charitable institutions was adopted. An appropriation of $8,559 for expenses in maintaining the hospital during the summer was also adopted. The hospital was adopted, and amendment to the jitney ordinance, allowing jitneys to turn at Allen Avenue when filled, and to start at 7 o'clock, was adopted. Mr. Jones adopted. Mr. Dickinson sought to amend by giving the City Controller the power to approve bonds, but the amendment was defeated. The resolution providing for the rehabilitation of the Fire Department was adopted, and a resolution asking Director Myers why he had not named certain officials designated in the two-platoon system, was sent to the Advisory Board.

Presents $1 Gas Paper.

Mr. Hirschberg introduced a resolution fixing the price of gas at $1.00 per hour. The resolution was adopted. A similar resolution fixing the price of electricity at $1.00 per hour was also adopted. A resolution providing for a joint committee on charter changes was adopted. The committee was composed of Mr. Jones, Mr. Dickinson, and Mr. Myers. The committee was charged with the task of studying the charter and making recommendations for changes. The committee will report to the Council on or before the next meeting.

Occupation of the western line of the Matanzas River by allied troops.

British Seek New Zone.

One of the British proposals, it is reported, will be the establishment of a new neutral zone on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles. The British are concerned about the possibility of irregular forces crossing the border and causing trouble. They want a formal guaranty of evacuation of Thrace before any parleys take place.

M. Franklin-Bouillon had an interview today with General Harrington after her husband, Dr. George Harrington, had left for Florida, came to light in police court today when the guests forfeited bail ranging from $50 to $100 each.

The party was raised early Sunday morning by John Gibson, former Stouffer, preacher and writer, died at his home today in his 52nd year.

Rev. Stouffer Is Dead.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Rev. Byron Stouffer, preacher and writer, died at his home today in his 52nd year.

CHARGE OFFICIALS TOOK LARGE LIQUOR SUPPLY FOR THEIR OWN USE

Former Justice Department Attaches Scored by Grand Jury.

"EVIDENCE" WAS RAISED

Federal Grand Jury Files Report, Scoring Acts Occurring in 1920.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Charges that certain representatives of the Department of Justice converted their own large stocks of liquor seized here in the enforcement of prohibition laws, were made in a special report filed today by the Federal grand jury. The report asserted that the liquor was removed from the warehouse used by the department for storage purposes and was used by the officials involved for their private consumption. The report also charged that any of the liquor was disposed of for financial gain. The grand jury also charged that the officials involved in the conversion of the liquor were guilty of perjury. The report was filed in a 100-page document. It was the first time that the grand jury has filed a report since 1920. The report was filed in a 100-page document. It was the first time that the grand jury has filed a report since 1920.

CHARTER CHANGE MOVE S BALKED

Council Refuses to Suspend Rules for Hirschberg's Resolution.

SALARY RAISE KILLED SEE NO PERIL OF WAR

Declines to Adopt Paper Making Pay of the Mayor $8,000.

(By Universal Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—As twelve delegates left Norfolk today for their duty to Constantinople, the government officials declared that we can not be dragged into a Near East war. The delegates were leaving for the Mudana conference. The government officials declared that the Mudana conference was a purely diplomatic matter and that the United States had no interest in it. They also declared that the United States would not be dragged into a war in the Near East.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

There was unmistakable optimism in the administration that American warships got under way promptly at noon.

Advices to the State Department indicated that the British and French were making progress toward peace with the British and Turkish Kemalists. For the first time in weeks the belief was expressed that the United States could avoid trouble in Turkey.

The situation is such, however, that no one could be certain, it was said. As evidence of this feeling of apprehension, the Navy Department said that eighteen additional destroyers are being conditioned at Norfolk and held in readiness to join other United States ships in Asiatic waters.

The government said that for the present work and situation the twenty American destroyers will be sufficient. Unless hostilities are opened they will proceed at once to the rescue of refugees of the Christian minorities.

FASHIONABLE PARISIENNE DONS SET OF EYELASHES

(By Universal Service, Special Wireless.)

PARIS, Oct. 2.—After removing the wrinkles by shortening the mouth, straightening the nose and smoothing the skin, the fashionable Parisienne is now having a complete new set of eyelashes.

Long, slender lashes are carefully sewed to the edges of the lids where they take permanent root. The operation requires anesthesia for twenty-one days, after which there is no need to betray the operation.

A "dozen" of fashionable women and stage favorites are declared to have undergone the process with complete success.

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

name the individuals who were involved, but declared that their conduct "cannot be too severely condemned."

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

At the Department of Justice, officials indicated that the action was in prospect since the offenses complained of were by "former attaches of the former administration" of the department. William J. Burns, chief of the department's bureau of investigation, confirmed that large stocks of liquor held in the custody of the department had "disappeared" (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

VIRGINIA BISHOP CALLS ON AMERICA FOR NEW CRUSADE

Dr. Cannon Urges Use of Force to Protect Asiatic Christians.

DEEMS ACTION VITAL TO PREVENT SLAUGHTER

Secretary Hughes Replies Government Is Doing All in Its Power.

HAS MOVED TO SAVE REFUGEES

Troops and Navy Only Available When Congress Shall Have Acted.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Secretary Hughes declared tonight in a cable message that the United States government was doing all in its power to protect the Christians in Asia.

Dr. James Cannon, Jr., bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who is in Paris, that the American government, in reference to the Near Eastern situation, "has not failed in any way to make every effort to protect the Christians in Asia."

The executive, Mr. Hughes added, "has no authority to go beyond this, and there has been no action by Congress which would justify this government in an attempt by armed force to protect the Christians in Asia."

On the other hand, those who favor branch banking as a business necessity and convenience are quietly at work among the delegates. They point out that today's definite action of the State bank division was to be expected, but they promise an introduction of the bill in the future.